

Best Natural Canned & Raw Cat Foods

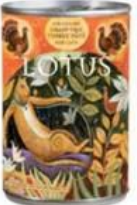

May 2012 edition from NaturalCatCareBlog.com

All these foods met some tough criteria, which I describe in this post. If your cat has a health condition, be sure check with a vet about his special dietary needs before changing his food. This can be a serious matter.

Best of health to you and your cat! ~ Liz

BEST CANNED OR RAW CAT FOODS

ITEM NAME	WHAT'S TO LOVE	COST	SPECIAL CONCERNS & TIPS
Nature's Variety raw FROZEN (except for Rabbit formula) 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Meats sourced from US and New Zealand (except rabbit) • Omega 3s (fish oil) • Raw is considered most easily digested, nutrient-available form of cat food. • Low starch, grain free 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • LOW daily feeding cost compared to others on this list. 	Includes ground bones—not recommended for cats with kidney issues or constipation. Rabbit meat is processed in China, so I'd avoid the rabbit recipes.
Primal, raw 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Some ingredients are organic (not the meats though). • Small company focused solely on quality pet food. • Omega 3s (fish oil) • Raw is considered most easily digested, nutrient-available form of cat food. • Very low starch, grain free 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • LOW daily feeding cost compared to others on this list. 	Includes ground bones—not recommended for cats with kidney issues or constipation. Tip: Very helpful food portion calculator provided online (it's challenging to calculate amounts without it)
Feline's Pride raw FROZEN 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Good variety of selections: Cornish hen, turkey, chicken, duck, and more • Simple recipe • Omega 3s (fish oil) • Recommended by Feline Nutrition Education Society and Elizabeth Hodgkins, DVM is also a fan • Low starch, grain free 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • LOW daily feeding cost compared to others on this list. 	Order online at www.felinespride.com Includes ground bones—not recommended for cats with kidney issues or constipation.

Honest Kitchen raw DEHYDRATED 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Only pet food legally allowed to call themselves "human grade" (they won a lawsuit). Plant is certified for organic and kosher products by the state of California. • Raw is considered most easily digested, nutrient-available form of cat food. • Low starch, grain free 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • LOW daily feeding cost compared to others on this list. 	You need to add water soak it for about 15-20 minutes before serving. Introduce gradually. Texture is unique--some cats resist it. Ours like it better with ground turkey added. Tip: Best deal I found on a trial size is at their online store. Tip: You can add "homemade" food. "Add 1/2 cup of home food for each dry cup of Prowl. Feed slightly less Prowl to compensate"
Blue Buffalo Wild Delights AND Blue Bistro 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Meat is from US and New Zealand • No carrageenan • No BPA in cans • Very low starch, grain free 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Low daily feeding cost compared to others on this list. 	Feed two 3oz cans per 6 to 8 lbs. body weight day, so active 10 lb cats will likely need a bit more than 2 cans per day. Only comes in 3oz. Note that Wilderness Wild Delights is different from just "Wilderness" (Plain Wilderness has carrageenan)
ZiwiPeak, raw air-DEHYDRATED 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Omega 3s (fish oil) • No hormones and antibiotics • 8% more moisture than most dry foods--more if you add water. • More convenient than raw frozen food. • Raw is considered the most easily digested, nutrient-available form of cat food. • Low starch, grain free; nice simple ingredients 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Low daily feeding cost compared to others on this list. 	To support kidney and urinary wellness in healthy cats, I would not serve this without mixing in some water. Several experts say dry foods are too dehydrating for cats with kidney problems. Tip: Our cats love the "Venison & Fish" formula. Lamb, not so much.
LOTUS canned 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • No carrageenan • Very low starch, grain free • All ingredients sourced from US, Canada, New Zealand • Made in small batches in US • Claim not to have BPA in lining 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Medium daily feeding cost compared to others on this list.
Taste of the Wild 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • No BPA in cans • No carrageenan • Low starch, grain free 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Medium daily feeding cost compared to others on this list.

Newman's organic grain-free canned 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Organic. • Liver, in particular, can be very nourishing and appealing for some cats who are weak from illness. • No BPA in small cans (but 12oz cans have it) • No carrageenan • Very low starch, grain free 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Medium daily feeding cost compared to others on this list. 	Be sure to get the grain-free ones, but there's not much variety. (Some cats don't like beef or liver.) Tip: A little dry--mix in some water.
Nature's Variety Instinct canned 95% (except for Rabbit) 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Meats sourced from US and New Zealand (except rabbit) • No carrageenan • Very low starch, grain free • No BPA in 5.5oz and 3 oz cans 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Medium daily feeding cost compared to others on this list. 	Rabbit meat is processed in China, so I'd avoid the rabbit recipes.
FROMM canned 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Food sources from US and Canada • No carrageenan • Very low starch, grain free 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Medium daily feeding cost compared to others on this list. 	Almost all their canned foods include salmon, which I wouldn't want to feed everyday. Better to do 1-2x per week to reduce thyroid risks.
Tiki Cat Hanalei Luau Wild Salmon, canned 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Sources through environmental fishing practices; seafood sustainability and food safety guidelines • Manufactured in a human food factory (quality is visible—looks and smells like human food) • Our cats LOVE it • No BPA in cans • Low starch, grain free 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Medium daily feeding cost compared to others on this list. 	Use in rotation schedule for variety--not as only food. This formula does contain a small amount of vitamin K3, which I normally avoid for reasons described here. However, as part of a varied diet I personally think this formula's good qualities outweigh the unfavorable bit of K3. Avoid the TikiCat formulas that have carrageenan or grains in them. (This Wild Salmon one doesn't have those.)
Life's Abundance Instinctive Choice canned 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Simple ingredients, include organic chicken • Omega 3s (fish oil) • No carrageenan • Very low starch, grain free • No BPA in cans 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Medium-high daily feeding cost compared to others on this list. 	Cats always seem to love this stuff. Only one "flavor" (but contains multiple meats.) I can only find it online--by the case. I suggesting getting their trial size first. You can save money & time with their auto-ship option.

Wellness Healthy Indulgence pouches 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Grain free, very low starch • High moisture • Less fuss than cans 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Very high daily feeding cost compared to others on this list. Instructions say feed 2 pouches for every 5 lbs of cat, so an active 10 lb cat would need 4 pouches per day - that's a lot. 	Contains oat fiber, which is gluten free in this case, but it may not be the most digestible substance for sensitive cats.
Radcat raw FROZEN 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • All batches tested independently for total bacteria, Salmonella, and E. Coli • Omega 3s (fish oil) • Most simple raw formula available--best for cats with digestion problems. • Most ingredients are organic or pasture-raised--including the meats! • Raw is considered most easily digested, nutrient-available form of cat food. • Very low starch, grain free 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Very high daily feeding cost compared to others on this list. 	Not as convenient to serve as other raw food because it's not pre-portioned

Looking for the best Dry foods?
 See <http://www.naturalcatcareblog.com/dryfoods>